CONDITION OF MR. CLEVELAND

Former President's Illness Is Reported as Alarming

THREE NURSES ATTEND

Precautions Taken to Observe Secrecy and Keep the Patient Undisturbed Are Redoubled

STORY OF CANCER GAINS CREDENCE

Lakewood, N. J., May 3.—News which has leaked out today from the sick room of former President Grover Cleveland, in the Lakewood Hotel, points convincingly to the conclusion that his condition is most alarming. The precautions taken to observe secrecy and keep the patient undisturbed have been redoubled and it is now difficult to even penetrate the grounds in the vicinity of the great lonely hostelry.

Dr. Joseph B. Bryant is keeping constantly within calling distance of Mr. Cleveland, and it is said that there is no certainty as to when he will return to the city. He has been here since Friday. Previously he only made flying trips. Dr. Lockwood, of New York, is in consultation with Dr. Bryant and comes here frequently. It is now learned that the only local physician who has been consulted is Dr. J. H. Hance. He refuses to discuss the case.

It is certain that Mr. Cleveland is too ill to be moved from the hotel, which closed for guests two weeks ago, and it is equally certain that he is confined strictly to his bed.

Today a third nurse joined the two others on duty. In the early part of his illness the ex-President had but one nurse. Later a second came and now the third makes it possible to have a nurse at his bed constantly. They work in shifts of eight hours each.

No one outside of his family, the physicians and nurses has seen Mr. Cleveland for weeks. This afternoon several of his Princeton friends drove over in automobiles. They fared no better than do the reporters. In each instance the visitors were told that Mr. Cleveland could not be seen.

William Becker, an assistant manager, who is in charge of the hotel, even refused to take their cards to the Cleveland apartments. He says that not the slightest matter is brought to attention of the former President. Hundreds of letters and scores of telegrams from all parts of the country arrive daily, but none of them are laid before Mr. Cleveland.

Friends of the latter who are anxious concerning him, criticise Dr. Bryant for refusing to give out any information They say that with the entire country interested in the condition of the former President bulletins should be issued from time to time. Although it has been unofficially said that Mr. Cleveland is suffering from stomach trouble and rheumatism, no positive statement on that score has come from the sick-room.

The belief that the patient has cancer of the stomach has gained considerable credence here. It is known that Mr. Cleveland is given very little medicine and what he does take is principally to allay pain. About all the nourishment he takes is milk toast and broth.

High Food Prices to Continue

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson is the Administration optimist. On the basis of reports so far received he predicts bumper crops for the farmers this year and a continuance of high food prices. He gives as a reason of this fine outlook for the granger, and less favorable prospect for those who do not till the soil, that the population in this country is increasing faster than crop acreage. There is not enough excess of bread and meat to keep pace with the excess of mouths to eat the bread and meat supply. It is his opinion that this condition must last until it is rectified by more digging. Instead of flocking to the towns the unemployed must go back to the land.

Addressed Brotherhood Meeting.

The Express comments as follows upon the address of one of Bellefonte's prominent ministers at Lock Haven last Friday evening.

Rev. Dr. Platts, of Bellefonte, the pastor of the Presbyterian church at that place, was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Brotherhood, held in Great Island Presbyterian chapel Friday evening.

Dr. Platts made a most inspiring address on "The Power of God's Word to Save." He spoke for about an hour and presented strong and clear power of God's word. He said that the bible was an up-to-date book, and was absolutely correct in its historical and scientific statement, notwithstanding the efforts of critics to have it appear otherwise. The speaker received the undivided attention of his hearers, and the thanks of acting President A. B. Salmon, the speaker in behalf of the audience.

State Commencement.

The board of trustees and faculty of the Pennsylvania State College are planning to make the 1908 commencement one that will eclipse all others. It is the intention to dispense with much of the class work and routine exercises and make it somewhat a reunion of former students and especially those who have interested themselves in the future welfare of the college.

The most notible and elaborate part of the commencement exercises will be the installation of the new president Dr. Edwin Earle Sparks. Many prominent men such as Andrew Carnegie, Charles M. Schwab, Gilbrt White and a number of college presidents will be invited, some of whom have already signified their intention of being present.

GRANGE STANDS FOR OLEO LAW

Penna. Commission to Confer With Government Officials

LAW HAS LOOPHOLES

The State Dairy Interests are to be Safeguarded from Bogus Butter Products.

STATE DEPARTMENT WILL ASSIST

A committee of the Pennsylvania State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, headed by Worthy Master William F. Hill, of Chambersburg, together with representatives of the Pennsylvania Pure Butter Commission, Secretary of Agriculture N. B. Critchfild and Pure Food Commissioner James Foust, of Altoona, are in Washington to consult with government officials concerning the federal laws which control the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine, butterine and renovated butter. This question has become an acute one with the farmers and dairymen of the state, because so many dealers have violated the statutes governing the manufacture and sale of substituted butter products and managed, because of numerous loop-holes in the federal laws, to escape punishment.

Last October a number of representative grangers, farmers and dairymen in Chester and Delaware counties, together with a dozen or more commission and produce merchants, issued a joint circular letter and distributed 15,000 copies throughout the state, giving in detail the defects in the national laws. The movement which resulted in the preparation and distribution of these circulars, was started by Thomas Sharpless, of Birmingham township Chester county.

The headquarters of the Pennsylvania delegation are at the Hotel Raleigh, in Washington, D. C., and were opened at noon on May 5. The Pennsylvania State Grange will be represented by Master W. F. Hill, Secretary J. T. Allman, E. B. Dorsett and Frank P. Willitis, of Ward, Delaware county; the Pure Butter Protective Association, in part, by Thomas Sharpless, West Chester; Isaac W. Davis and Dr. B. Harry Warren; the Pennsylvania State Department of Agriculture, Secretary N. B. Critchfield, Pure Food Commissioner James Foust and one of Foust's experienced attorneys, A. H. Woodward of Clearfield county, who has made a specialty of the preparation and study of the laws of bogus butter products.

George H. Wistar.

George H. Wistar, a prominent citizen of Howard, died at his home there Wednesday morning about 6 o'clock. Mr. Westar had been in ill health for some time and since last week his death has been momentarily expected. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Deceased was born in Philadelphia August 6, 1846, making him over 61 years of age. While he was yet a boy the late Balser Weber brought him to Howard to clerk in his general store, and so well did he perform his duties that in time he became a member of the firm known as B. Weber & Co. He continued in the mercantile business until 1886 when he secured a position in the postoffice auditing department at Washington. He was an expert penman and accountant and received deserved promotions from time to time. During the time he was employed in Washington his family resided in Howard. When his health would no longer permit him to follow his clerical position Mr. Wistar returned to his family. Deceased was a member of the Lick Run Lodge I. O. O. F. at Howard, and also of the Masonic fraternity.

Deceased is survived by his widow and two daughters Mary and Alice, both of whom are located in Omaha, Neb., and Sallie, at home. The funeral took place Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Has been Here Before.

Patrolman James Litz early Tuesday evening arrested an individual, who hails from Bellefonte, for drunkenness and indecent exposure on the street. This chap was recently arrested and jailed several times in this city for begging and for various charges, and it is likely that he will get a term in jail unless he leaves town today. THE ACADEMY MINSTRELS.

Popular Local Talent Show Draws a Full House at First Presentation Friday Evening.

The initial presentation of the Bellefonte Academy minstrels to which the people have been looking forward for some time, was given on Friday evening to a well-filled house. The audience was captured at the beginning and their interest held throughout the evening. The stage effect in the ensemble was a very taseeful arrangement. The songs and choruses by "Washington," "Brown" and "Chocolate Drop" were repeatedly encored, they having done their parts with the proficiency of professionals. Some very good jokes were cracked during the evening and many of them were very cleverly sprung on Bellefonte people.

As a monologist Lewis Daggett carried off the palm and won the admiration of all. The acrobatic stunts of "Mr. Strong" and Mr. "Twist" were an interesting feature of the evening and a part of the program that was much appreciated. "Billy Josh" and his talking dog were not long on the stage but made it interesting for a few minutes. The minstrels closed with the grand finale "Is Everybody Happy."

The music was furnished by Christy Smiths orchestra and was under the direction of Prof. Sherwood E. Hall. The management deserves much credit for the manner in which the minstrels were conducted. With the exception of several curtain errors in the second part of the program everything went off smoothly and as a whole the minstrels excelled some of those on the road. The show warranted the general appreciation and support it received

Howard Has Electric Lights.

The hope of many citizens of Howard was realized the other day when the current which will light the homes and business places of that place was turned on. The plant is owned and operated by W. H. Long, the popular miller of that thriving little town. The turning on of the electric current is another mark of the progress the town has been making.

About 18 years ago the question of erecting a water works to supply the citizens with water and for fire protection was discussed and after great agitation the promoters of the water works succeeded in bringing the question to an issue and the citizens decided in favor of that great improvement. For the past 15 years they have been enjoying good fresh mountain water and the saving in fire losses has been far more than the original cost of the water works.

For some years a number of citizens have been agitating the question of lighting the borough. This movement the council finally took into consideration and the gasoline street lights were the result. Some difficulty was experienced with these lights and when the sad burning accident, which cost the life of Rusel Solt occurred last fall, the council was unable to secure another satisfactory person to tend them. The council held long sessions in discussing the question, and while nearly all favored lighting the town the expense was considered too great.

At this juncture W. H. Long asked for the privilege of erecting poles and wires throughout the town for electric lighting purposes, and at the same time submitted bids to the Council for lighting the streets of the town. Mr. Long was finally granted the franchise and at once set to work to have his plant in operation at the earliest possible time, which took place last Wednesday. Mr. Long has a decided advantage in furnishing Howard with lights as he uses both steam and water power at his large grist mill and can supply the current at a less cost than any competitor who would have to erect a complete plant.

A number of business places and residences are now enjoying the use of the lights and many more places will be wired soon. It is thought the council will take up the street lighting proposition before long and the streets of the town also be lighted by electricity.

Moerschbacher—Kelley.

Mr. Ralph Moerschbacher and Miss Sarah G. Kelley, both of this place were married in St. John Catholic church Wednesday morning by the Rev. Father McArdle. The groom is one of Bellefonte's prominent young men, being for some time associated with his father in the restaurant business. The bride is a charming young lady and will make Ralph a good helpmate through life. They will reside in Bellefonte, and their many friends wish them unbounded success and happiness through life's journey.

COUNTERFEITERS HAD PLATES

Were Ready to Prey on the Westinghouse Pay System.

WERE NABBED IN TIME

Two Men who Flooded Pittsburg With Bogus Half Dollars Plead Guilty.

COUNTERFEIT PLANT WAS COMPLETE

Equipment for making coins was only part of the layout of Joseph A. Haas and John Forman, who recently flooded the Pittsburgh district with counterfeit half-dollars they had manufactured in a den in Braddock.

They had plates for the turning out of every kind of pay check issued at the various Westinghouse plants in Pittsburgh, Wilmerding and Swissvale.

They also had plates for making the regulation $10 treasury note.

It was one of the most complete counterfeiting plants ever discovered in this country.

With one of the men, Haas, a registered pharmacist and chemist, and the other, Forman, an expert, all-around mechanic, from electrical work to photography, engraving, printing and molding, and with each of them having records of serving time for jobs of different kinds and of being the slipperiest individuals of their sort in the country, their cases attracted unusual attention when the prisoners were taken before Judge Young in the United States district court Tuesday afternoon to be sentenced. The court room was filled and attorneys literally crowded about the bench in front of which some of the implements and molds used by the counterfeiters were displayed.

As the men had been caught with the goods on them and had no chance of dodging the truth, both made confessions almost immediately following their arrest. Their indictment, of course, was a mere detail and both pleaded guilty when arraigned.

As an indication of the cleverness of the work of these men it will be recalled how the entire Pittsburgh district was stirred up in the latter part of February by the discovery that a large number of new counterfeit half-dollars was in circulation, street car conductors being the principal victims.

For awhile it was almost impossible to get anyone to accept a new half-dollar, no matter how genuine it was. The bogus coins had cast suspicion on all the new half-dollars issued from the mint.

Should Move Elsewhere.

Occasionally one hears the remark, "I wish I was out of this town," and then one feels like saying "I wish you were," for one who stands on the street corners chewing and spitting, telling obscene stories, cursing the town, finding fault with grandmother because she was a woman, claiming that the merchants were a lot of thieves, that the lawyers and newspaper men would sink a man to a finish, and a whole lot more, is a nuisance and an abomination. Any town, pestered with one or more such worthies, would be justified in exercising cowhide authority on the bosom of their pants. No one is obliged to live where he is not suited. If one hasn't an encouraging word for business enterprises and institutions of his town, he should shut up and "go 'way back and sit down." If things don't suit you, move where they will. A growler and sorehead in a town is an enterprise killer every time. It would pay a town to donate him $5 and tell him to move.

MRS. GEORGE DALE.

Well Known Dale Summit Lady Died Saturday Afternoon.

Helena Dale, wife of George Dale, of Dale Summit, died suddenly Saturday afternoon at one o'clock of heart trouble. She had been ill for about 8 weeks.

Helena Musser was born at Penn Hall on February 21, 1830, making her age 78 years, 2 months and 13 days at the time of her death. On December 27, 1855, she was married to George Dale, at Lewistown, Pa. On April 1, 1856, the spring after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Dale moved on the farm at Dale Summit where they have since resided and enjoyed a peaceful and happy life. On Dec. 27, 1905, they held their golden wedding at the home where they went to housekeeping. Mrs. Dale was a member of the Lutheran church and was well known throughout the community in which she lived. She was a woman who had endeared herself to many by her kind disposition and respect for others and her death is a cause of mourning for all who knew her.

Besides the husband the following children also survive: H. C. Dale, cashier of the Rushville, Neb., National bank; Blanche, married to F. W. Musser, Bellefonte; John S., and Willard Dale, Dale's Summit (State College); and Lillie, at home. The following brothers also survive, Daniel Musser, Orangeville, Ills.; Michael Musser, Rushville, Neb.; William and Benj. Musser, Jewel City, Kan.; and Charles Musser, Pearl City, Ills.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday forenoon at 10 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. I. J. Stonecypher, pastor of the Lutheran church. Interment was made in the Shiloh cemetery.

School Directors Convention.

The triemial convention of the school directors of Centre county was held in the Court house Tuesday forenoon. The convention was called to order promptly at 11 o'clock by Supt. Etters who called for nominations for president of the convention. Prof. Foster of State College was unanimously chosen for that office. H. C Quigley of Bellefonte was elected secretary and W. F. Ward of Ferguson township and S. W. Smith of Centre Hall as tellers.

Prof. D. O. Etters of State College, the present incumbent was the only person nominated and his election was therefore unanimous. The total number of directors who answered to their names was 139. The attendance was large considering that most of the directors are farmers who are busy at this time of the year. But they were doubtless in attendance on account of the rumor that an attempt would be made to raise the salary of the county superindent.

When the chairman asked for a motion for fixing the salary for the ensuing term, H. C. Quigley promptly moved that it be fixed at $2000 per year and gave his reasons. He was supported by Senator W. C. Heinle. Others took up the opposition and when a vote was taken the motion was lost by a large majority. It was then proposed that the salary be made $1800 per year but this proposition was also voted down. The present salary of that officer is $1650 and is based upon the member of schools in the county which will make the salary a similar amount for the next term. The convention closed with an address by Prof. Etters.

William Bowes.

A friend of the deceased has just sent us word of the death of William Bowes which occurred at the home of his only daughter Mrs. Evert Daugherty in Clearfield on April 17th, 1908. Deceased was aged 60 years, 9 months and 55 days. His wife preceded him in death about elevens years ago. One daughter and one son survive.

Mr. Bowes was highly respected in the community in which he lived as was testified by the large number who paid their respects at the grave when the remains were brought to Snow Shoe for interment in the Askey cemetery. Rev. Ebersole of Sterling Run officiated.

The May American Magazine.

William J. Locke begins a new serial "Simple Septimus" in the May American magazine. Wm. Allen White writes a character sketch of Taft. Mr. Dooley contributes an extraordinary article on death, "The End of Life." Ray Stannard report "An Ostracized Race in Ferment." Miss Doty writes of "Mormon women and what they think of Polygamy" The Interpreters House and the Pilgrim Script are full of lively reading.

CONVENTION BOOMS KNOX

Republicans Endorse Favorite Son at Harrisburg

PORTER RENOMINATED

Convention Nominates Delegates to National Convention and Instructs Them for Knox.

THE SENATOR'S PLATFORM ADOPTED.

Harrisburg, April 29th.—Senator Philander Chase Knox was today presented to the Republicans of the nation as the choice of Pennsylvania for the presidential nomination. Amid great enthusiasm the state convention indorsed his candidacy and instructed the 68 delegates to vote and work for him.

Senator Knox stands upon a platform the three national planks of which were written by himself. He commits the party to such "modifications in the law "as will adapt it to the necessities and equitable demands of the present time."

On the question of currency, he has drafted a plank which calls for a "system that will permit of more elasticity in times of excessive activities and yet one that will forbid the introduction of any medium of exchange that would not in itself, and independent of any government guarantee, be at all times worth its full face value."

The third proposition which caused the party to embody in the platform is that of the improvement of the waterways and harbors.

Aside from landing the Knox presidential candidacy the convention recommended the re-election of United States Senatar Bosise Penrose.

The convention re-elected Col. W. R. Andrews chairman of the state committee.

Col. W. Fred Reynolds was nominated presidential elector for the twenty-first district.

Pennsy Bonds Snapped Up.

Subscription for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's $40,000 000 forty year 1 per cent bonds aggregated many times the amount offered according to reports from New York and London, where they were offered for subscription for the first time. So great was the demand in New York that Kuhn, Loeb & Company, bankers, kept their books open for a single minute instead of one day as was intended. There were so many subscriptions on hand that the demand could be filled only in a smal proportion.

Cable despatches from London say that Rothschild & Sons and Baring Brothers & Company, Incorporated, who offered one-half the issue for sale betre, kept their books open for an hour to comply with the law, but the number of subscriptions there was so great that only the larger ones will be filled.

Want Tax Law Repealed.

Robert Haight, secretary and treasurer of the Business Association of Pennsylvania, an organization which is fighting for the repeal of the state mercantile license tax, is at work in this part of the state among the merchants and business men for the purpose of securing signers to a petition for the repeal of the law. He has authority to receive subscriptions to be used for payment of expenses.

A concerted movement among the merchants of Pennsylvania for the repeal of the mercantile law is under way and a monster petition will be presented to the legislature when it meets. Many city associations have taken action on the matter and are unanimous for the repeal of the law. They claim that the tax is not only an imposition on the merchants, but that a very smal portion of the total amount collected ever finds its way into the state treasury. Some allege that the main object in passing the law was to provide ncrative berths for a certain class of politicians. However that may be it is certain that a strenuous effort will be made to secure its repeal. Representatives of the Pennsylvania Business association will visit every city and town in the state to secure signatures and subscriptions.

Milk Tests at State.

Several herds supplying State College Creamery with milk are tested each month. Herd No. 5 containing six cows has an average of 152 pounds of butter fat per cow for eight months ending April 1st. The best cow in this herd produced 191.9 pounds of fat in this time, while the poorest cow produced 72.3 pounds of fat, which is only one pound less than the average of herd No. 3. The best cow in No. 3 produced only 99.5 pounds of fat in eight months while one cow in this herd has only made 50.6 pounds of fat in eight months which does not begin to pay for the feed she has eaten. One cow in herd No. 4 produced only 33.9 pounds of fat in the eight months, add to the value of this fat a good calf and these two cows have not paid their way.

In herd No. 7 the best cow produced 152.1 pounds of fat in the eight months while the average for the herd is 116.8. In several of these herds the owners have been feeding concentrated feeds and report that their cows have done better than ever before.

WHEAT IS AN INDICATION

Prospects Good for Largest Crop for a Number of Years

SEASON IS FAVORABLE

Large Crops Will Insure Fair Income to the Farmer and Cheap Food to Consumer

WOULD HELP TO BRING PROSPERITY

The United States is to have a wheat crop of over 700,000,000 bushels in 1908, according to all the present indications as gleaned by the department of agriculture. There is a special need for large crops this year, and the earliest of them to make a report gives promise to meet this demand. The wheat yield of 1907 was 635,000,000 bushels. Only twice—in 1901 and 1906—was the 700,000,000 mark passed. The season was backward and nearly all the conditions were adverse in 1907. This year, however, the season is earlier, the acreage is greater, and the hope of a big harvest has something to say for itself.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat says that large crops of the great staples in 1908 would go far toward placing the country again on the high road toward prosperity. Wheat stood fourth on the list of the country's crops in 1907 in point of value, corn being first, hay second and cotton third. Some times wheat leads hay and cotton, but corn always heads the list. The time for planting corn and cotton is still ahead of us, but as the season opens favorably for wheat there is a strong expectation that the other big crops will also start out under friendly auspices. In the aggregate yield 1907 did not stand high, but the big prices which all the staples commanded on account of the prosperity which prevailed along till after the harvest, made the total value of all the farm products greater than in any previous year. It passed the $7,000,000,000 mark for the first time in the country's history. The range of prices will necessarily be lower in 1908, although in some cases they are still up to the 1907 mark. But the harvest, whether it be small or large, will see the average of prices below those of twelve months earlier.

Large crops, however, will be of vast service to the country. They will insure a fair income to the farmer and cheap food to the consumer. Agriculture is still one of the country's great interests; and when the agriculturist prospers the whole country has good times. We are on the up-grade in business once more. This is shown by the increase in the transactions of the banks and the railways as compared with a few weeks ago

Financial confidence is being restored. Good crops in 1908 would have a little of the same tonic effect which they had in 1894 and 1895, as well as in 1877 and 1878, in periods of much greater depression than that through which we are passing now.

Turned Dad for Local Option.

The snake story season is about due, but the following one which we clipped from the Lock Haven Express is not of the exaggerated kind. It is one with a moral and had a reforming effect on the father of the boy who perpetrated the trick:

Last week a down town boy was out walking and came across a nest of little snakes measuring about six or eight inches long. They all got away but two, which the youngster captured and took home in his pocket. Just as he entered the kitchen he spied his father had put a half-pint flask of whiskey on a shelf in the cool shed. There were plenty of half-pint flasks about the premises and the lad with the natural devilish instincts of a boy put the two snakes in a bottle and put it up on the shelf in place of the whiskey. That night the "old man" came home with a comfortable jag on and about midnight got up and went out for a nip. He took out the cork and turned the bottle up but nothing came out. He lit a match to see what was the matter, just as one of the snakes crawled out of the neck of the bottle and he saw the other one wriggling around inside. He let out a yell that was heard several squares and ran into the house and jumped into bed and tried to hide his head under his wife's pillow. The next day he signed the pledge.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Pennsy to Have Fastest Train.

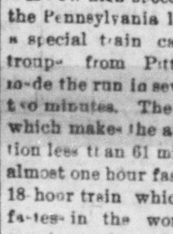
A new high speed was established on the Pennsylvania lines on Sunday when a special train carrying a theatrical troupe from Pittsburg to Chicago made the run in seven hours and forty-two minutes. The distance is 468 miles which makes the average speed a fraction less than 61 miles an hour. This is almost one hour faster than the special 18 hour train which is considered the fastest in the world. All the company's previous records for long distance runs were broken and it is said the run was made in view of establishing a faster schedule between New York and Chicago. When the New York terminal is completed it is believed that the run can be made in 16 hours which is two hours less than the present schedule.

Monument to the Bucktails.

Wide public interest from Central and Northeren Pennsylvania centers in the coming dedication at Driftwood on Monday, of the monument to the memory of the famous Bucktail regiment of civil war volunteers. This monument is a deserved recognition on the part of Pennsylvania of the deeds of brave and sturdy sons, and the unveiling of this monument marks an event in state history that is of no ordinary importance.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.



It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs. Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

PE-RU-NA AS A TONIC AND BLOOD PURIFIER.

Mrs. Paul Casavant Writes From 219 Monroe Street, Topeka, Kansas, Concerning Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

In Spring and Early Summer a Tonic is Needed.

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., South Tacoma, Wash., Gives Her Experience With Peruna. Read Her Letter Below:

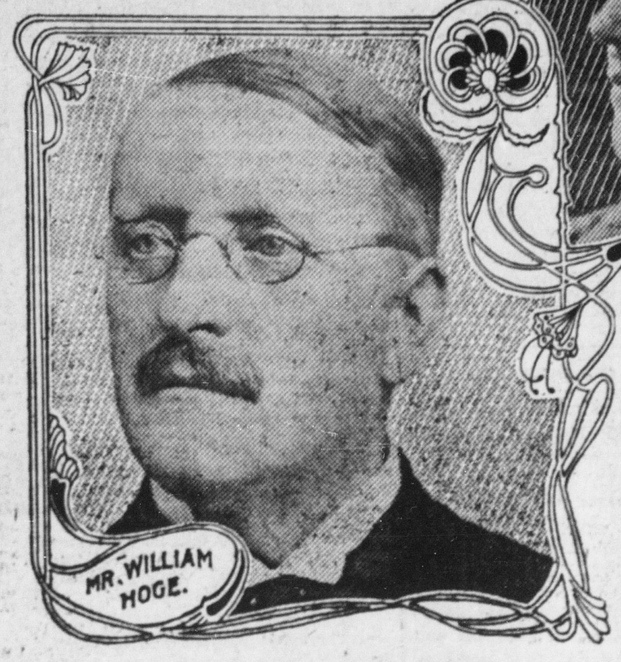
The source of good blood is fresh air and well-digested food. If anything interferes with digestion the blood becomes impure.

A catarrhal condition of the stomach prevents perfect digestion. Such a condition allows the food to ferment and decompose in various ways, instead of digesting. The blood is thus contaminated with various materials that do not belong in the blood.

This gives rise to spring fever, eruptions on the skin, general lassitude and constipation.

Peruna corrects all these difficulties by striking at the source of them. By eradicating the catarrhal condition of the stomach Peruna at once restores digestion, the blood is thereby purified, and the whole machinery of the body is put in working order.

Peruna has probably made a more remarkable record in cases of catarrh of the stomach than any other medicine. These cases are very frequent, and we have a host of testimonials in which Peruna has received lavish praise for prompt and permanent relief in cases of catarrh of the stomach



Mrs. Paul Casavant, 219 Monroe street, Topeka, Kansas, writes:

"I have found Peruna very effective in restoring my health and strength after I had been worn out and run down for a long time. I began to use it about six months ago when I was unable to leave my bed. My nervous system was shattered and I was daily losing flesh and strength. This condition was completely altered after a few bottles of Peruna had been used and I kept on using it until I was finally restored to perfect health and had gained about fifteen pounds.

"I feel so grateful for what your medicine has done for me that I am pleased to give it my hearty endorsement and shall always be glad to speak a good word for it."

Tones up the System.

Mrs. William McRoberts, Waverly, Minn., writes:

"I am perfectly well of the catarrh. I took Peruna and Manalin. I recommend your medicine to every one and cannot praise it enough. It is a fine medicine to take any season of the year. Taken in the spring it tones up the system and acts as a gentle stimulant."

A Good Tonic.

Mr. Joe Leonard, Flat 3, 232 Allen St., Buffalo, N. Y., writes:

"I have good reason to endorse Peruna as I have found it a good tonic, stimulating the system and sustaining it under great pressure, imparting unusual endurance and enabling me to work much longer and harder than the system could possibly do were it not for the great powers with which it endowed me. It gives one nerves of iron."

Mr. Caleb H. Bortell, Police Officer, 212 North Paca street, Baltimore, Md., writes:

"For several years I was troubled with catarrh of the head, throat and stomach. Many times I would vomit before and after eating.

"I took seven bottles of your Peruna, and I am glad to say that it has cured me.

"I feel more like living and working, and am not bothered at all with my old troubles.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Peruna to all sufferers with catarrh, and I thank you for what you have done for me, for none but those who have suffered as I have can appreciate a great cure as I have found Peruna to be."

Splendid for La Grippe.

Mr. Frank H. Fielder, 218 Pleasant Ave., Montgomery, Ala., formerly principal of Haynesville High School, writes:

"I can truthfully say that Peruna is a splendid remedy for la grippe, and a good tonic for building up the system."

Pain in Chest.

Mrs. A. W. Gustin, 5209 Lake Ave., St. Joseph, Mo., writes: "When I began taking Peruna I had quite a severe pain and ache in the left of my chest. I suffered a great deal with it.

"I wrote to Dr. Hartman and asked him what I should do. He advised my taking Peruna, which I did. I took three bottles, and I can say I am cured.

"Thanks for kind advice and Peruna."

Mr. William Hoge, President Commercial Travelers Association, 280 Broadway, New York, N. Y., writes:

"I endorse Peruna as the most effectual remedy for catarrh I have been able to find in my travels in this country or Europe. I can truly say that I have spent thousands of dollars in this country alone trying to find a cure, and it was not until I was induced to give Peruna a trial that I obtained anything like permanent relief. As a tonic it is simply great. It ought to be in the grip of every commercial traveler on the road. It cured my wife as well as myself. We have not had the slightest symptom of catarrh for a long time."

In a later letter Mr. Hoge says:—"I have used Peruna for many years, never without a bottle in my grip. I am the youngest feeling and youngest looking man of my age in New York, which I think is entirely due to Peruna."

Hay Fever and Catarrh.

Miss Mayme E. Smith, 444 East Mound St., Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"Have used Peruna for catarrh and hay fever. The results being remarkable, I can highly recommend it to all who are suffering with the above diseases. I am happy to be able to say it has helped me wonderfully."

Eyes Red and Watery.

Mr. William S. Hearn, 1063 Segal St., Camden, N. J., writes:

"For about two years I was troubled with my eyes being red and watery, and my general health was very poor.

"Finally a friend advised me to try Peruna. I had tried almost everything else, so I purchased a bottle of Peruna and commenced to take it at once, and before I had finished the first bottle I found I was improving.

"I wrote you for special advice concerning my eyes, which I received. I continued to take the Peruna until I had used six bottles.

"Now my eyes are absolutely well, and I feel like a new man in every way.

"I honestly advise any one similarly afflicted to try Peruna."

Mrs. Emily Kellogg, 5649 S. Lawrence St., S. Tacoma, Wash., member of Ladies of the Maccabees, writes:

"Three months ago I had an attack of biliousness which threatened to undermine my health and strength. Luckily for me, I tried Peruna at the suggestion of my friends before it was too late. I found in a few days' time that I did not have the usual sick headache, neither did food nauseate me any longer. In two weeks' time Peruna had completely rid my system of the poison and bile, and I was in a much better condition. My skin assumed its normal color, I had a splendid appetite and I was in every way improved in health. I used Peruna for a month longer and it wrought a wondrous change in my entire system."

Peruna Tablets.

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to one average dose of Peruna.

EDITORIAL.

CONFIDENCE must be pretty well restored. A Bloomsburg editor has just been married.

THERE are some things in women's wear that you can overlook, but not the Merry Widow hat.

THE milliners would probably make more money if they would sell hats by the square yard.

THE western prisoner who secured his release by placing a want ad in one of the papers surely realizes that "it pays to advertise."

MR. Bryan has decided on his cabinet members, but has probably not gone so far as to select new wall paper for his room in the White House.

SECRETARY Taft expresses the hope that the American people will rally to the support of the Red Cross Society to such an extent as to enable it to relieve the federal government of caring for the victims of disaster.

Knox For President.

Pennsylvania's Republican convention Wednesday formally present d the Hon. Philander Chase Knox for the Republican nomination for president of the United States in succession to Theodore Roosevelt, backing him with the state's 68 delegates to the national convention.

The platform upon which Mr. Knox was placed by the convention declares for tariff revision in accordance with the apparent wish of the people, but—also in accordance with the wish of the people—a revision "not abating one jot or tittle" of "the policy of protection which has been the cause of America's population, power and prosperity." It also declares strongly for a national policy of waterway improvement. On both the tariff and the waterways Mr. Knox has expressed himself recently, and he and the convention are a unit on those subjects. The people's representatives in the state government and in congress are warmly approved and the indorsement of the acts and policies of President Roosevelt and the national administration are enthusiastic. Senator Knox had a share in forming these policies and making them succeed, both as attorney general of the United States and as a member of the United States senate. The Roosevelt policies are his as well as Roosevelt's. In all essentials he and the President are in perfect agreement, as the latter has testified.

His ability and integrity are admitted by even the sincerest foes of Republicanism and in his own party he is rightly regarded by its leaders as the peer of any man in public life and the superior of most of them.

THE fishermen who are advocating a lower limit of trout to be caught in one day are probably the ones who never reached the present limit of fifty.

THE PRESIDENTIAL SITUATION.

Secretary Taft has decidedly the best of the presidential situation from a Republican standpoint to date. Governor Hughes, who some time ago loomed large on the presidential horizon, has fallen behind and there is a decided lull in the sentiment for him. In fact, the lull was so noticeable that it was necessary for those in charge of his campaign to get together and give out the statement that his name will not be withdrawn from the canvass until the national convention at Chicago has made its choice of candidates. Next to the Ohioan he will enter the convention with the most delegates and unless Taft can corral enough delegates to win against any combination Knox has a good chance of being made the nominee.

The conditions in New York at the present time are against the aspirations of Governor Hughes, while in no sense to his discredit. The Republican party is badly divided. Outside of the governor every important officer in the state and greater city is a Democrat, and the legislature has failed to pass the legislation recommended by the governor. It would thus hardly be the part of wisdom for the Republican party to make Hughes its standard bearer in this important campaign, and it is doubtless this feeling that has caused a lull in sentiment for him.

But while there has been a lull in Hughes sentiment, the Knox boom has received fresh impetus and in all parts of the country there is a feeling that he would be the strongest man the party could nominate. Taft has elements of weakness which must be admitted by his most enthusiastic admirers and supporters. The negroes are against him and the union labor element, if not against him, is not enthusiastic for him. There is not a single element of weakness in Knox's candidacy. He stands as he has stood the past seven or eight years as the most virulent exponent of the president's policies. The president admires him and would be satisfied with his nomination. The convention could not make choice of a better, broader more capable or more available candidate.

If Secretary Taft does not go into the convention with the nomination assured, none of those in the fie d will be in better position than Senator Knox to unite the support of a l and become the party's standard.

MARCH winds and April snowstorms all in the last three days of April may make May flowers. But they feel more like making rheumatism.

A question has arisen at Washington as to the validity of the law to increase the pensions of widows which was approved by President Roosevelt on April 19th. The fact that the bill was approved on Sunday is said by some attorneys to invalidate the measure. But whether the signature holds or not, the bill will become a law, inasmuch as it has not been vetoed. In any event, we can't think of any act that could more appropriately be signed on Sunday than this one.

A Danish inventor who has already acquired some celebrity makes the astounding declaration that he has already invented a process whereby he can set type in an extra ordinary linotype machine in Paris by wireless waves thrown from London. He furthermore asserts that in a short time by the use of his machine the London correspondents of the New York newspapers will be able to send their news straight to the printing machines through the Maroni operator. This is becoming a decidedly wonderful world.

State Base Ball Team Home Again.

The base ball nine of the Penna. State College returned home this morning from a very successful three day tour in which they played three games and won them all and all were with good high class teams at that. On Monday they played Syracuse N. Y. University and won by the close score of 4 to 3. On Tuesday, Rochester University where they won easily by the score of 7 to 3 and Wednesday they defeated the crack Cornell University team at Ithaca, N. Y., winning by the score of 4 to 2. Naturally the team returned home quite jubilant from the successful trip and all wore little pennants on the crown of their hats, signifying their sweep. So far this year the team has won every game of the eight they have played but one.

People who "take notice" must have observed a growing sentiment in this country in favor of using only put-up foods and medicines of known composition. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription stands alone as the only ready-put-up medicine for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments that bears on the wrapper a full list of the ingredients, composing it, printed in plain English. It is the "Favorite Prescription" of a Specialist in woman's diseases and not a "patent medicine." Made of the roots of native, medicinal plants without alcohol or other harmful ingredients, Dr. Pierce's "Prescription" has been the favorite cure for the weaknesses, pains, drains and disorders of the womanly system which has stood the test of forty years experience. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet giving ingredients and what well-recognized authorities of all schools of medicine say of them.

A QUESTION OF TIME.

By Clarissa Mackie.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

A night in India—humid, breathless, with great stars hanging in the dark blue sky and the dank odor of rotting vegetation from the nearby jungle.

From his seat in a bamboo reclining chair Welton stared unwinkingly at the blazing constellations. The punka boy had fallen into exhausted slumber on the mat, and the huge fan hung motionless overhead.

Welton could hear the low murmur of voices from the interior of the bungalow, and he knew that by slightly turning his head he could see the pink glow of light from the shaded lamp and the reflection of two faces in the large mirror in the corner.

The two forms leaned over the piano, the white fingers of Marion Lester drawing soft harmonies from the instrument, while Akersile murmured tenderly in her pretty ear.

And it was because of these two at the piano that Welton was very miserable and stared at the stars. He knew that Mrs. Lester was nodding over her embroidery in some obscure corner of the room, and as for himself—well, he seemed not to be in it at all!

Colonel Lester was quartered at Lucknow, and when it was learned that Welton could not obtain the desired leave of absence to visit his sweetheart Mrs. Lester had good naturedly undertaken the journey to Welton's isolated station at Gola Chat.

The unexpected visit of the two women had thrown the little station into a blissful confusion of preparation. The depredations of a man eating tiger had furnished an inexhaustible source of conversation and had been the occasion for many tentative trips into the jungle for several weeks before the advent of the visitors, but now all was forgotten save the fact that there would be new faces to break the dead monotony of the days the fresh faces and low toned voices of refined English women.

And then Akersile had stepped in and spoiled it all. He had come up to see Welton and to try pot shots at the man eater, but he had met Marion Lester, and in spite of the fact that he was Welton's guest and that he knew the relations existing between the two he paid assiduous court to the girl.

Thus far she had repelled his advances with a dignified coolness that seemed to inflame him to greater ardor. This evening, however, the gentleness of her manner toward him and her careless treatment of her lover had driven the latter to sulky solitude in the veranda.

When the blue smoke wreaths from

"WERE YOU REALLY ASLEEP, BILLY?"

his cigar had formed a dense cloud which obliterated the starry heavens from his gaze Welton dropped his eyes and stared at two points of yellow light that oscillated near the ground.

They were ten inches apart, and they moved in unison. Welton calculated that they must be just without the bamboo stockade which inclosed the compound.

There was a prickly feeling along the spine, and he could feel the hair raising slightly around his forehead as he realized that Chuni had neglected to close the great gate and that there was perhaps only a hundred feet intervening between the man eater and the open window of the little drawing room.

He thought rapidly, with his eyes fixed on the lambent points of flame in the velvet gloom of the gateway. If he made a dash for the window and the safety that lay beyond the beast would spring before he could close the shutters behind his retreating form. If he could make Akersile hear, at least the women would be safe.

"Akersile!" he called in a low, clear whisper.

"Yes!" came the other man's lazy tones.

"Close these shutters instantly! The man eater"— His words were lost in the quick manipulation of the iron rods from within, and the shutters fell with a clang, blotting out the glow of light and leaving Welton alone to face the tiger.

The momentary confusion roused the beast into action. Welton could see the slow approach of the yellow eyes, could hear the padding of the great paws on the sandy path, and now his long sinuous form was dimly outlined in the starlight.

Welton remembered that he had left his revolver on his dressing stand. It would not be much of a fight with all the odds on the other side. At any rate, when the tiger had borne him away to his lair Akersile, the coward—

Suddenly there was a terrific roar, a stifling odor of fur. Welton's hand instinctively flew to his pocket, and to his surprise the revolver was there. There was a sharp crack at one of the yellow spots of light and a rush of air as the beast sprang toward him. He dropped to the floor, and with a tremendous thud the animal struck the closed shutters and bounded back with a bloodcurdling scream of baffled rage and pain.

Welton had leaped over the railing and slipped behind the protecting trunk of a giant teak. The animal snuffed about the veranda, and presently there was a cry of startled fright, and Welton remembered the sleeping punka boy. He saw the tiger stepping down the path, his jaws gripping a dark, moaning bundle.

He knew that, unmolested, the beast would now retire to the jungle with his victim and that the occupants of the bungalow as well as himself would be free from danger. He ground his teeth and aimed for the other eye. He put it out.

In the light of the stars he saw the beast shiver, drop the dark bundle, which sped affrightedly away, and then come toward him with bleeding, blinded eyes and snarling mouth.

It was only a question of time now. Around the tree he dodged, and then farther away from the house toward the stockade. He would lure the beast from the vicinity of the bungalow and fight it out with him in the open space before the jungle, which rose dark and forbidding in the background. One would win out, and the other—

Again he heard the crack of his revolver, and yet again, and still the beast did not fall. Still he tracked the man blindly, remorselessly. There were two cartridges left in the chamber, and then—again Welton fired, once, twice. With a shudder, he felt something soft on his cheek.

"By Jove! Billy seems a bit sleepy! Wake up and hear the news, old man!"

Welton recognized the facetious tone of Akersile, his faithless friend. He opened his eyes slowly, wonderfully. Overhead the great stars were hanging in the dark blue sky, and there was a rank odor of rotting vegetation from the nearby jungle.

He was reclining in the bamboo chair, and Marion stood behind him with her soft hand upon his rumpled hair. There was a glow of lamplight from the open window of the drawing room, and in the opposite direction he could see that the gate of the compound was closed.

"The—man eater?" he asked dazedly, moving his cramped limbs.

"What made you think of that?" asked Akersile ruefully. "I was just going to spring it on you! Chuni—the brave, the incomparable Chuni—has slain the man eater just without the stockade! Look!"

Welton rose stiffly to his feet and looked sheepishly at the flaming torches and the crowd of brown skinned natives who were triumphantly dragging the huge carcass through the gateway. Chuni, proud and victorious, salaamed before his master. "For the honorable sahib," he said solemnly.

A little later Marion bade her lover good night. "What do you think, Billy?" she murmured softly, with a side glance at the stalwart form of Akersile. "Major Akersile has been telling me about his engagement to Marjorie Booth—a dear schoolmate of mine—and I'm afraid we were so much interested in talking about her that we forgot you! Were you really asleep, Billy?"

"I hope so," said Billy impressively.

El Dorado.

The modern meaning of El Dorado may be traced as follows: One of Pizarro's men said that he had discovered a land of boundless wealth between the Orinoco and the Amazon. This country was named El Dorado, and many adventurers, among them Sir Walter Raleigh, endeavored to find it; hence the name has come to mean a golden country of the mind, a fabulous land of fabulous wealth, much as Cockaigne, a fancied land of luxury and idleness.—New York American.

Deceived.

"I want to get a divorce from my wife."

"On what ground?"

"Well, I don't know the legal term for it, but she didn't tell me before I married her that she was an elocutionist."

The Cause.

Theater Goer—The love scene in your play isn't half so natural as it used to be last season. The same people do it too. Manager—Yes, but the lovers were married a few months ago.

Hard to Understand.

Bibbs — Some people get everything they go after. Gibbs—Yes, and others don't seem to get what's coming to them.—Smart Set.

Happiness and Hunger.

"My idea of perfect happiness," said the seedy philosopher as he made his fourth round trip to the free lunch counter, "is to be in a position to go into the swellest restaurant, put my hand over the price list of the menu and order what my taste dictates, irrespective of the demurs of a diminished wad."

Three Wives.

The Beggar—Please, sir, will you kindly assist a poor man who has three wives to support? The Pedestrian—Why, do you mean to say you are a bigamist? The Beggar—Oh, no, sir. Two of them are the wives of my sons-in-law.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Look out for your own shortcomings and other evils will undoubtedly look out for themselves.

They also serve who only stand for a wait.

If the world owes us all a living, why does it always ship the goods C. O. D.?

It doesn't matter so much what to do so long as you carefully observe what not to do.

Being engaged consists chiefly in the imagination of some girls in wearing a diamond ring and eating theater suppers.

The man who can put up a good front is very seldom called down.

A man who has brains to rent at a moderate rate might do a rushing business in some localities.

Going a-fishing is a powerful aid to the imagination.

Sometimes one gets so sick that he is positively ashamed to make a recovery.

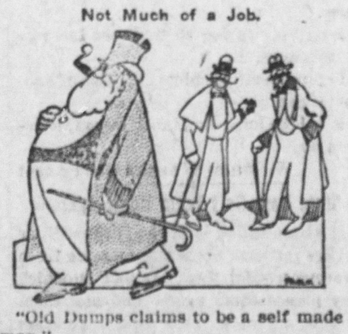
Every dog has his day, but he is a sly one who gets out of footing the bill for it.

Maybe the reason Solomon was so wise is because he looked to his composite wife for advice and counsel.

Vain Regrets.

Woe
Is me!
Too late I see
Where I missed it.
Still
I will
Say that it is not
The first time in my life
That vain regrets
Have sat around
On the doorstep
Looking at me
Reproachfully
Because my hind sight
Was so much better
In every way
Than my foresight.
Had I been wise
And known a thing or two,
Or even
Not so many as that,
I should have enlisted
In the late war.
What war?
You ask.
And how late?
The war with Japan,
I reply.
But, you say,
There was no war.
True enough.
That is how
I was stung.
What a chance
To be a hero
At no cost at all
I overlooked!
Had I known
It wasn't coming
I would have been the first
To enlist.
Poor chump that I am,
I missed glory
By not volunteering
In the war that was never fought.

Not Much of a Job.



"Old Dumps claims to be a self made man."

"That takes a great responsibility off of nature."

Where Credit Was Due.

"How is your wife?" asked one neighbor in passing.

"Sick abed, thank you," replied the other.

"Why thank him?" asked a friend of No. 2 after No. 1 had gone his way.

"He lives next door and plays a cornet," replied No. 2, with deep feeling.

For Man and Beast.

"They ought not to abolish horse racing. It is good exercise."

"But the horses don't need the exercise."

"I mean for men."

"How do they exercise anything but their voice and their imagination?"

"Walking back."

Settled Before Hand.

"There is no marrying in heaven, you know," said the cynical bachelor.

"Certainly not," asquiesced the budding miss.

"Why so sure?" queried he.

"They are all married before they go," returned sweet sixteen.

Worse Than Nothing.

"How'll you trade dogs?"

"Even."

"Where's your dog?"

"Hain't got none."

"Take mine, then. This is where I get the best of you."

Generally.

"A divorce case always is notorious, isn't it?"

"Depends."

"On what?"

"Amount of money involved."

The Glory of Life.

The human race is still in its infancy. Up to the present moment, with a few grand exceptions, man has lived mostly an animal existence. The brute is only partially educated out of him. He has not yet evolved that superb character, that diviner man, foreshadowed in the beast. How few people ever get anything more than a mere glimpse of the true glory of life! Few of us see any real sentiment in life or anything above the real animal existence and animal pleasures. Most of us look upon our occupation as a disagreeable necessity that somehow or other ought to have been and might have been avoided. The trouble with many of us is that we think too meanly of ourselves. Our sordid aims and material, selfish ambitions have so lowered our standards that we think downward instead of upward; we grovel instead of soaring. Our lives are materialistic, selfish, greedy, because we live in the base of our brains, down among the brute faculties. We have never explored to any great extent the upper regions of our brain, never developed our higher intelligence.—Success Magazine.

A Courteous Pirate.

That even a Chinese pirate may have a strong idea of chivalry is proved by the following excerpt from an item in the North China Daily News: "The launch at once stopped when ordered to do so. The leader of the pirates was then heard to order his men that they were not to molest any one on board who voluntarily handed over his or her valuables. Among the passengers, however, were a father and son, the latter of whom, it seemed, was a little too slow in obeying the pirates' order to hand over his money, with the result that he was shot. Upon hearing the shot the pirate chief, who was on deck, came down into the cabin and, seeing the father of the unlucky young man lamenting over his son's death, addressed the old man and condoled with him on his son's unfortunate and 'undeserved' death. The chief finally brought out of his pocket a roll of $50 and handed the sum to the old man as a solatium, bidding him to refrain from further lamentations."

A Dangerous Feat.

For a feat of dexterity and nerve it would be difficult to surpass that of the Bosjesman of South Africa, who walks quietly up to a puff adder and deliberately sets his bare foot on its neck. In its struggles to escape and attempts to bite its assailant the poison gland secretes a large amount of the venom. This is just what the Bosjesman wants. Killing the snake he eats the body and uses the poison [illegible]

Woman's Watchword Is Modesty.

Whatever threatens woman's delicate sense of modesty, frightens her. For this reason many a woman permits disease of the delicate womanly organs to become aggravated because she cannot bring herself to submit to the ordeal of unpleasant questionings, offensive examinations, and obnoxious local treatments, which most physicians think necessary. Doubtless thousands of the women who have taken advantage of Dr. Pierce's offer of free consultation by letter have been led to do so by the escape thus offered from a treatment repugnant to modesty.

Any sick woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., in perfect confidence; all letters of consultation being treated as strictly private and sacredly confidential, and all answers being sent in plain envelopes with no advertising or other printing upon them. Such consultation costs you nothing whether you take treatment from Dr. Pierce or not.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been long hailed as a "God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well. It enables women suffering from "female weakness," prolapsus uteri, retroversion, anteversion, and other displacements of the organs distinctly feminine, to cure themselves right in the privacy of their homes. Pelvic catarrhal drains, painful or irregular periods, backache, frequent headaches, weak nerves, dragging-down pain or distress in the lower abdominal, or pelvic, region, gnawing sensation in stomach, dizziness, or faint spells, and kindred conditions and symptoms are cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a secret or patent medicine, against the use of which most people of intelligence naturally object, but is, in fact, the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and experienced physician in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments and who is not afraid to publish all its ingredients, as he does, on its bottle-wrapper, attesting the correctness of the same under oath.

"Favorite Prescription" is the one medicine for woman's delicate ailments which contains neither alcohol nor harmful, habit-forming drugs, being a pure glyceric extract of curative principles found in our most valuable native, medicinal roots, as attested by many of the most eminent medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are effected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Foul, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood thereby curing, pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, hives and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous swellings, enlarged glands, open eating ulcers, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough 'cures'? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. Took 10 $1.00 bottles. Now I'm like a girl of 18.

IMPROVING ON INSTRUCTIONS

By Taylor White.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Ben Runyon regarded with amusement, if not approbation, the diminutive applicant for the vacant post of office boy. The lad's fluent talk, heavily flavored with the slang of the moment, was diverting even while it exposed his unfitness for the place.

"I'm afraid it's no deal, Lippy," he said, his tone tinged with kindly regret. "You don't quite fill the bill."

He turned back to his desk, but a grimy hand grasped his coat sleeve.

"Forget it, boss," pleaded Lippy (he had confessed that to be the only name he knew). "I'm in wrong. Get that? I don't live wid me fader and mudder, but it's 'cause I ain't got none, see? What ef I do live in a lodgin' house and ain't got me pants pressed? I'll be Johnny on de spot and wort' a dozen dude kids. Len' me t'ree iron men and I'll be back here wid de glad rags in a half hour. Is it a go? Give a feller a chanct, will yer?"

Lippy tried hard to keep a stiff upper lip, but the nervous twitching betrayed his anxiety, and there was a pleading look in the sharp greenish eyes. Runyon drew a five dollar bill from his pocket and handed it to the boy.

"It's a go," he agreed. "Now, for heaven's sake, get a decent looking suit! Don't come back here looking like a prize fighter's sparring partner, and hurry up."

With a muttered "T'anks" that was meant to be brusque, but which spoke whole volumes of the boy's delight, Lippy sped from the office. He was back within the prescribed half hour. A clean shirt and a paper collar had replaced the tattered garment that once had been his body covering. A suit well worn, but clean, and a pair of shoes described by Lippy as "new secondhand" completed the outfit. Lippy was installed.

For a few weeks things went well in the Runyon office. Lippy learned the rudiments of a more conventional speech, and his alertness brought many a smile of approval from Runyon. Lippy was keeping his promise to be "Johnny on the spot."

Then came a blue Monday, when all went wrong. Runyon came to the office with the temper of a bear. He passed Lippy with a curt nod and shut himself in the private office, whence presently came a demand for the typewriter. Lippy reported that she had not yet arrived and pointed out that she still had fifteen minutes grace. But the fifteen minutes stretched to half an hour, and still the girl had not come, while Runyon's temper grew more savage.

"DON'T MENSHUN IT," MUTTERED LIPPY, BACKING AWAY.

Then came a telephone message. Miss Blake had been married the day before and had gone on her honeymoon. Her mother hoped that it would not inconvenience her employer, but her fiance had been ordered west and the girl had accompanied him.

"What am I going to do without Miss Blake?" stormed Runyon. "There are important papers to be got out. I can't trust them to a public typewriter."

"Get another girl," advised Lippy sagely. "The man what makes the machines keeps girls in cold storage. Phone him and he'll push one down here special delivery."

"No go," dissented Runyon. "I must have one in whose discretion I can trust. The only recommendation those girls require is that they use the machine."

"Ain't you th' hep gamoosh to some dame wit' th' hurry fingers?" suggested Lippy. "Your fren or your fren's fren?"

Runyon started.

"It may do some good," he told himself. "It will show that I am not disposed to hold anger. Take this card and ask the lady if she can come down at once," he added to Lippy, handing the boy a card which he drew from his vest pocket.

Lippy was out of the office like a whirlwind, and presently he was standing in front of a handsome house in the residential district debating with himself if this could be the address. His debate was short. To Lippy orders were orders. He climbed the steps and soon was standing in the hallway, while the butler went off to find the girl.

"You have a letter from Mr. Runyon?" she asked as Lippy was ushered into a room all sweet smells and soft toned colors. Lippy shook his head in a negative.

"He didn't have no time to write," he explained. "He couldn't wait f'r that. He told me to hot foot it up here and tell you he couldn't wait s'leven seconds wit'out you. You're to come down wit' me."

"What's the matter?" she asked in astonishment. "Mr. Runyon is in some trouble?"

"Up to his neck," declared Lippy. "Say, if you don't get down in a hurry he'll go dead nutty. He was mos' bughouse when I went away from there wit' somethin' t' tell you."

"Wait in the hall. I'll be right down," she promised, while her trembling hands toyed nervously with a ribbon. "I—I did not know it was so serious—that he would take it this way."

"Serious!" echoed Lippy. "I'll bet we find two cops and the ambulance doc in th' place if we don't get there pretty quick."

The girl rang the bell for her maid, and Lippy went down to the front hall to spend a pleasant ten minutes in impertinent conversation addressed to the butler with the delightful knowledge that the staid functionary did not dare hit back.

Then the girl came down the stairs looking even more attractive in her heavy furs, and Lippy wonderingly followed her into the automobile that stood at the curb. This sort of typewriter was new to him.

The ride was all too short, and the girl pressed after him as Lippy raced down the hall and proudly threw open the door with a shrill "I got her, boss."

Runyon came out of his private office and halted as he looked at the girl.

"You have come, Aline? You forgive?" he asked hoarsely.

"The boy said you were nearly distracted," she explained. "I should not have come if he had not led me to believe that you were on the point of committing some rash action."

"I sent him for that typewriter you recommended," explained Runyon. "My girl got married yesterday and left town. I had the address of this girl of whom you had spoken. Lippy, let me see that card."

Lippy produced the now battered pasteboard. It was one of Aline Breval's own cards with a penciled address on the back, but the pencil marks were almost obliterated through friction with other papers.

"I did not notice that the pencil address was blurred out," explained Runyon. "I suppose that Lippy did not even notice the marks. He is responsible for the trouble to which you have been put. But, dear, can't you see the hand of fate in the development? Won't you believe in the sincerity of my penitence and forgive my ill humor?"

Lippy, catching the drift of the remark, searched the girl's face. His quick perception saw in her clear eyes the dawn of forgiveness long before his employer read his answer, and he plucked at Runyon's coat.

"Say, boss," he shrilled, "I'll go out and get me lunch." And as he departed he innocently slipped the spring latch that these two, who were oblivious to all else than themselves, should not be disturbed by the intrusion of book agents or peddlers.

It was an hour before he showed up again, and Runyon was working feverishly at his desk, while Miss Breval sat by the window enjoying the panorama of the city spread before her gaze.

Runyon handed him a letter.

"Take that to this address," he said smilingly. "It is the address of the new typewriter. When she comes, give her these specifications to copy. I shall not be here when you get back. I shall not be back until tomorrow."

"I'm sorry I didn't get her th' first time," said Lippy hypocritically.

"It's all right," assured Runyon as he added a five dollar bill to the envelope he still held out. "You improved upon instructions, and we, Miss Breval and myself, are very much obliged."

"Don't menshun it," muttered Lippy, backing away, for Miss Breval was smiling upon him, and the radiance of that smile abashed the boy's assurance for the first time in his eventful young life.

Charles Reade's Lunatics.

The author of "Leaves From a Life," a woman, referring to Charles Reade's notion that half the people shut up in lunatic asylums had no business to be there, says: "One day he told papa he had picked out twelve quite sane men from among the supposed lunatics, and one of the doctors had promised to ask them all to dinner and give them another chance. Would papa come too? As papa knew the doctor and knew also that ample precautions would be taken, he agreed, and the dinner duly came off. All went well, the twelve lunatics behaved admirably, and Charles Reade became more and more sure that he had rescued twelve unfortunates from worse than prison until the dessert was placed on the table. Then the doctor, turning to the man on his left, said: 'Have you been introduced to your next door neighbor? He is the Virgin Mary.' The lunatic leaped to his feet. 'You lie!' he screamed. 'I am the Virgin Mary.' And in a moment all the twelve lunatics began to show themselves in their real colors."

Too Dangerous.

Mr. Church—Whew, how it's raining! Lend me your umbrella, dear. I've got to run over to the vestry meeting.

Mrs. Church—But why not use that umbrella you've been carrying all week?

Mr. Church—What, to the vestry meeting? Why, that's where I got it.—Philadelphia Press.

The Social Mase.

He—Don't you find this going out so much rather fatiguing? She—Yes, and so confusing. By the way, is the Plunketts' dance tomorrow night or is this it that we're at now?—Woman's Home

Memorial Day Suggestion.

A beautiful custom prevails in some portions of our state to decorate our heroes graves on Memorial day with a blooming, growing plant, a geranium is possibly the most satisfactory. With a little effort the plants could be secured, either donated or the small sum of the cost of one or two would gladly be given by all. The high school or midway, by taking the matter in hand, could secure these plants, see to their planting on Memorial day, or before even, and assume a certain amount of care during the season.

A subscriber offers to start the donation with half a dozen geraniums and asks who will help. This is a very good suggestion and some one should be found who is willing to take the matter in hand and get the school children interested in the decoration of the graves of those who served their country faithfully in the time of need. Memorial day is not far off and no time should be lost if the suggestion is to be worked out this year.

Night Fire Alarm.

The residence and tailor shop of James Stickler on Bishop street was the scene of a lively fire scare on Tuesday night. Mr. Stickler was returning home about a quarter past eleven when he noticed large volumes of white smoke rolling from the roof of the building. He at once gave the alarm of fire and upon entering his tailor shop discovered that the draft pipe from the furnace, which enters the chimney in the shop, was red hot. He remembered having put several blocks of wood in the furnace before going out and supposed they had been burning and set fire to the soot in the pipe. By this time the chimney was burning fiercely and he hastened to the roof with several pails of water and poured it down the flue and extinguished the flames.

Both fire companies responded to the alarm but their services were not needed as the fire was confined to the chimney and Mr. Stickler had it under control. They however gave the chimney a thorough drenching and waited till all danger was past. The plaster was slightly damaged by water.
